

Title:

Clinical Trials for Drug Development: Some Statistical Problems

Author(s):

Tze Leung Lai

Technical Report number (Dept. of Statistics, Stanford Univ.):

2004-34

Date:

December 2004

Abstract:

This review article discusses several statistical problems of current interest in clinical trials for drug development, including efficient group sequential designs and interim analysis of clinical trials, nonlinear mixed effects models in population pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics, mid-course adaptive designs, multiple endpoints, dose-escalation studies in Phase I trials, and confidence intervals following group sequential tests.